Lorimer Pledges To Keep Bus Run

By PAUL MOSS Times Staff

After the public carrier licences of South West Coach Lines Ltd. are cancelled May 31, the provincial government will provide rural transit services to communities in the western sector of the capital

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer made a commitment Monday that the areas now served by the private company — Colwood, vate company — Colwood, Langford, Metchosin and Sooke — will not be deprived of transportation because the B.C. Motor Carrier Commisend of this month. His statement to reporters day, speculating that the commission's ruling last Friday signalled the government's first major involvement in the South West had applied only for the discontinuation of its Happy Valley-Metchosin-Rocky Point service, but the commission ordered the com-pany to abandon all its rural transportation licences and also its charter licence.

Lorimer refused to specify how the rural system will be operated by B.C. Hydro," he-said. "Many specifics will have to be considered."

Sources today interpreted the minister's statement to imply that either Vancouver Island Coach Lines or Pacific Commuter, both provinciallyowned operations, serve the western routes.

Lorimer did confirm that the government has no inten-tion of purchasing South West's transportation facilities, although company of-ficials had said earlier this year that months of negotia-tions had been held with the provincial bureau of transit. See BUS Page 2

LEG-HOLD TRAPS FOR B.C. BEARS

The idea of using leg-hold traps to catch bears which are allegedly killing domestic animals in the interior of B.C. has been termed "a vicious suggestion" by a Liberal MLA.

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) commented in an interview after Dave Hatler, a biologist with the provincial fish and wildlife branch, said he has been ordered to kill all male black bears in two 20-square-mile areas near Smithers

Smithers.

Hatler said he was instructed by government officials to snare black bears with leg-hold traps and shoot adult males and release the females — "if that's possible."

Gardom, who has asked the legislature repeatedly to ban the use of leg-hold traps in the province, said it is ironic that the government is attempting to find a more humane trap but is willing to use leg-hold traps for its own purposes.

"The whole thing is ridiculous and unjustified," Hatler said. "The problem is a vocal minority of people who still have the Little Red Riding Hood complex that anything with long teeth is bad."

He said that the situation dates back to the late 1950s and early 1960s when there was large scale poisoning of animals

"In those years a large proportion of branch funds—

"But more recently the branch realized its errors and ob-

As a result, branch staff worked to restore their image as protectors of wildlife, but last summer many ranchers again started complaining that they were losing livestock to predator animals, he said.

Politics in Paradise Lost

Politics in British Columbia over the past two decades hasn't risen much above the dog-eat-dog style of elementary conflict, but the current messy bout of recriminations rending the provincial Liberal party appears to set some new records.

In recent days, we've seen the party's legislative caucus commitpublic hara kiri. MLAs Allan Williams and Pat McGeer scuttle a little closer towards full embrace with Social Credit leader Bill Bennett, while Liberal leader David Anderson throws a tantrum, accusing them of being dishonorable and disloyal.

McGeer seems to have suffered a concussion in the donnybrook. He's offering to bet all comers in the press $100 if they can point out any deep philosophical or policy differences between the Liberals and Social Credit. His argument of course is that there are none therefore making smooth his switch to the party most likely to form the next government of British Columbia.

How McGeer and Williams will fare sitting with the rough and ready crew Bennett now com-mands in the legislature is grist for a Henry James novel, but a look at the clipping files suggest his first little while with the Socreds will feature an uninterrupted diet of

The Columbia River treaty? Seems McGeer called it "a very tragic deal" a couple of years ago. And back in 1971. Social Credit policy - or rather non-policy on health care constituted "grinding down" the sick, in the good doctor's phrase. A shameful record, he told the legislature. The province's universities were crippled by Social Credit's "bargain basement budgets" for education.

W. A. C. Bennett heartlessly ignored the mentally ill, according to McGeer. "If there's insanity in B.C., it's in our government policies because the government has no conscience and it has no heart," he said in 1969.

And how does McGeer explain away the nationalization of the B.C. Electric Co. and the elimination of Black Ball Ferries by the Social Credit administration of W. A. C. Bennett? Only mild deviations from the straight and narrow path of free enterprise? As we recall, the Liberal party censured both actions. Presumably a government which included him would sell B.C. Hydro and the provincial ferry fleet.

Anyway, McGeer's harping on the need for a party which will hold high the torch of free enterprise is a specious argument. Free enterprise of the Adam Smith variety today is limited to a few long-haired craftsmen. If all the props and aids enjoyed by business in Canada protective tariffs, DREE grants, managerial assistance, small business loans - were eliminated tomorrow, the result would be chaos. McGeer should stop talking in anachronisms.

As for the present-day Social Credit political philosophy, who can say what it is with any precision? Beyond a certain affinity for the yes-I-can platitudes of Jonathan Livingston Seagull, the platform changes with the latest colorcoded leaflet or television spot commercial produced by the party.

How will two Liberal MLAs who fought hard and long against the party's present patriarch be welcomed into the fold? Old wounds are easily re-opened, and there's no hard evidence that Social Credit has changed more than * its spots, its protective coloration. The conservative old guard - and the right wing new guard - still dominate.

The two Liberals, wanderers in the wilderness of opposition all their days, want to get close to the fire in their political old age. Bill Bennett may beckon them closer and offer a chance at governing the province some day soon, but given Social Credit's track record, would the two be anything more than window dressing, token moderates in a government of Babbitts?

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of May 6, 1915

One of the best-known Indian agents in British Columbia, W. M. Halliday of Alert Bay, arrived at the Dominion Hotel this morning. He has been engaged in a court case in Vancouver and also has a case at Nanaimo assize next week arising out of the potlatch evil which gives so much trouble in the agency. He said the court case in Vancouver was imporof the mail order firms, the wholesalers in which trade pleaded "that the liquor did not reach the Indians and the through my seizure of it, there was no tance of the money created a sale, and the onus lay on the seller to know who was receiving it by mail order." Mr. Halliday said there was a considerable amount of liquor consumed in the Kwawkewith agency, which covers a large ter-ritory on the island and the mainland.

Some Logical Liquor Reforms

It is too early to lavish praise on Attorney-General Alex Macdonald's proposed changes in provincial liquor laws since the legislation has yet to be tabled in the house. But two of the proposals selling beer in small grocery stores and allowing public consumption of beer and wine on picnics or outings are eminently sensible.

Years ago Quebec allowed small grocery stores to sell beer for the express purpose of ensuring that these small enterprises were not squeezed out of business by large supermarket chains. The system has worked well there. Supermarkets continue to flourish as do small corner stores. It is no exaggeration to say that beer sales have meant the difference between bankruptcy and profitability to these smaller enterprises. But the government should be careful to spell out the dividing line between "small" and "large" grocery operations. Sloppy legislation could result in endless hassles.

In legalizing the consumption of beer and wine in some public places, the government is simply doing away with the hypocrisy that surrounded this neanderthal legislation. If the police enforced the current law at every provincial picnic site, jails would be full of solid citizens. The law is just recognizing the reality that some people like a beer with their liverwurst sandwich or a glass of wine with sold in the same small stores. The excuse of difficulty in stocking wines makes little sense. If there is a market the wine companies and distributors will be sure to exploit it. Widening the distribution of alcoholic beverages will trouble some segments of the population yet many North American jurisdictions have permitted the practice for many years and they don't have any worse problems than we

But legislation should provide stiff penalties to grocers who sell beer knowingly to minors. With these reservations the new proposals should give small retail food stores a new lease on life and end the stupidity that makes a person a criminal for enjoying a little wine in the park.

Did JFK Favor Viet Peace?

NEW YORK - This is a time of reflection and reminiscence and wondering for everyone whose life and work and attitudes were altered by Vietnam.

U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, for example, recalling his negotiation of the Paris accords of 1973, said at his news conference the other day 'We wanted what was considered peace honor - that the United States would not end a war by overthrowing a government with which it had been asciated. And that still seems like an objective that was correct."

An objective that was correct, yes; but the accords were only a means to that end, and the means specifically included negotiation and "national reconciliation" in Vietnam.

Kissinger does not yet seem to have put to himself the question asked by Richard Holbrooke, a former foreign service officer in Vietnam and now the editor of Foreign Policy magazine:

Might Have Worked

"Why did we never go to Thieu, after and tell him that this was a new world and he'd better negotiate unless he want-

The answer is clearly that against all the evidence of weakness in South Vietnam and determination in North Vietnare the U.S. believed it could prop up an anti-communist regime in the South indefinitely, maybe even make it at some point self-supporting.

On the other hand, it was an article of faith that negotiations at best would produce power-sharing with the communists, and that would inevitably lead to complete communist domination of Viet-

Maybe it would or maybe it wouldn't have, but the unassailable fact is that "no negotiations" policy insisted upon for 20 years by five U.S. presidents has led to complete communist domination of Vietnam, as well as the abject humiliation of having to snatch the last Americans out of Saigon by helicopter, just before the deluge.

The opposite is not necessarily true, that a policy of negotiation might have produced something like a neutralist regime. But undertaken soon enough, even a negotiation that led to communist domination might have prevented the long and bloody post-1965 phase of the war the incalculable political, economic and social consequences in the U.S., and the ultimate U.S. rout.

General Duong van Minh's two days accession to power, ostensibly to negotiate a settlement with the victorious communists recalls, for example, that in November, 1963, Gen. Minh - having led the coup that overthrew and murdered Ngo Dinh Diem on Nov. 1 - probably had a much earlier and more hopeful opportunity to negotiate a settlement with what was then known as the National Liberation Front.

On Oct. 2, 1963, U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara had announced the intention to withdraw most of the 25,000 troops from Vietnam by the end of 1965, and to pull out a thousand by end of 1963. President John Kennedy had said on Sept. 2 that however, much help the Americans gave the final analysis, it is their war. They (the people of South Vietnam) are ones who have to win it or lose The military junta then ruling South Vietnam contained much "neutralist" sentiment (which was a major reason why it was overthrown a few months later by Nguyen Khan). "Big" Minh, though not a neutralist, was a South Vietnamese Buddhist of peasant stock who had led the overthrow of the Northern Catholic mandarin, Diem, With the Americans talking of withdrawal, the double-barreled NLF propaganda line white colonialists" had been set back. The repressions of the Diem govern ment, moreover, could be assumed to have been ended, or at least reduced.

On Nov. 8, 1963, according to the journalist, Jean Lacouture the NLF broadcast a statement that called "negotiations between interested groups in South Vietnam, in order to arrive at a ceasefire and a solution to the great problems of the country.'

There is no official U.S. record of this, but Washington did record a Nov. 13 broadcast in which the NLF said the Minh junta could have "a future which will be brilliant, which will have no more nightmares," if it separated itself from the U.S., worked for national independence and brought "freedom and democracy to the people."

Proved His Machismo

Since Kennedy had proved his machismo in the Cuban missile crisis the year before, and since he had just discovered in a September tour of the country that his limited nuclear test ban was highly popular, just the thing to underpin a 1964 presidential peace campaign against Senator Barry Goldwater, those November days might have been the right moment to urge Saigon into negotiations. After all, Kennedy already had agreed to a coalition with the Communists in Laos. But on Nov. 22, 1963, Kennedy was murdered and a different man in very different circumstances had taken his place. By Nov. 24. Lyndon Johnson already had told his ambassador in Saigon to assure Big Minh that he "can count on us" — even as Nixon a decade later gave Nguyen van Thieu his "solid of support. With such assurances, why should Minh or Thieu have risked the negotiations no U.S. president

Such incidents, combined with Communist successes in Cambodia and South Vietnam, will focus increased attention on this California-sized land. They are further proof, proponents of the domino theory assert, that it is Thailand's turn Geographically, this seems logical. Thailand is almost surrounded by unfriendly nations. Much of Thailand is closer to Hanoi than to its own capital of Bangkok. This has prompted many ordinary Thais to anxiously ask for-eigners: "Are we next?" However, there is consider-

Thailand has a long tradition of adept diplomacy. As one diplomat said recently:

By ANDREW MALCOLM New York Times

"The Thais are the best friends money can buy." This flexibility enabled Thailand to be the only country in this region not to become a colony of some giver power.

That is not to say that Thailand has no difficulties which could stimulate rebel exploitation. Foremost among these are poor relations with min-orities such as remote hill tribesmen. Many of these groups have much more idenification culturally, ethnically and linguistically with Laos than they do with lowland Thais. It is not so much a Thai prejudice against these peoples, though that exists too, as it is a long-standing lack of interest in anything other than collecting taxes.

Thus the appearance in town of a polite, co-operative Communist cadre who at first dispenses medicines and farming advice is in sharp contrast to the armed convoy of government officials who stop by to demand a free meal and some rice twice a year. It seems logical to accept when the Communist passes out arms for "protec-

Observers estimate there are between 7,000 and 10,000 armed insurgents led by Thai Communist agents who return from training in North Viet-nam at the rate of around 50 per month. They cluster in iso-lated areas of Thailand's south, northeast and far south, where they mingle with bands of Malaysian Communists, highwaymen and Moslem separatists.

The North Vietnamese and Chinese provide arms, supplies and training: But sensainvolvement generally are discounted here as fictions planted for domestic or foreign political purposes. The insurgents' arms are mostly American-made, stolen, cap-tured or bought from Thais.

On tour with Elton John last year, we spoke with drum mer Nigel Olsson aboard the band's rented Starship; Olsson talked about wanting to do his own music, his own single, maybe even an album. Now, he has his wish — and he may have gotten more than he wanted. He and bassist Dee Murray have been dropped from Elton's band — as reported exclusively here last week. Murray is unsure about what to do next, but Olsson is in LA, working on an album for Rocket (Elton's label); he will also be drumming on Randy Edelman's next LP . . . West Germany, where Purple just finished playing.

"Then Led Zeppelin turned around and sold out every hall in the country." And there's a reason other than a bruised ego. "I couldn't bear the thought of recording another studio album with Deep Purple," he said. "Stormbringer" (their latest) was crap. I want to cut it off with a good memory." Deep Purple will get a new guitarist and carry on. A live album from the European tour is planned.

Blackmore's announcement — which left the band reportedly "bewildered" — followed a glass-throwing rant in an East German hotel restaurant. Police were called, and it took a lot of purple prose to save Blackmore from a night in jail. "I'll never play a Communist country again," said rock's Mr. Wonderful. "They're fools."

God Bless Arkansas: When Black Oak Arkansas announced plans for an April 12 concert to benefit the Harrison, Arkansas hospital, two local Baptist ministers took umbrage, going to the City Council to denounce the rockers as — well, as rockers — or, in other words, "dopers" and "Satanists." Some 5,000 people (about half the town's population) some 5,000 people (about half the town's population) showed up—for the concert, that is; some 60 stayed outside for the protest, and no one got wet. advance.
The western oil index was up 5.46 to 187.72 in mid-afternoon after closing Monday at its highest level since Aug. 1. Analysts said buying is being stimulated by news that the export price of Canadian natural gas will be increased and that export prices of crude oil will be lowered.

Trading was delayed for about 15 minutes at the open in shares of Pacific Petrole-um because of an influx of buy orders. The stock was up 1/2 to $23% at mid-afternoon.

Air Canada Appointment

Yves Pratte, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Air Canada, has announced the appointment of John W. McGill as Vice President — Marketing. Mr. McGill was formerly Air Canada's Vice President — Eastern Region. He joined Air Canada as General Sales Manager in 1963. When Air Canada set out in 1968 to assist the Government of Jamaica in establishing their new international airline, McGill was named President of Air Jamaica. In 1971 he returned to Air Canada to head In-Flight Service and later became Chairman of Air Transit, the demonstration STOL service, operating between Montreal and Ottawa.

A native of Montreal, Mr. McGill was educated at Trinity College School in Port Hope, Ontario, received a Bachelor of Commerce degree at McGill University, Montreal, and dipostgraduate studies at the Centre d'Etudes Industrielles in Geneva, Switzerland. He served in the RCAF between 1951 and 1954.

A Lad To Watch: Griffin Keeps Right On Running

Once around the weekend lightly, and a name to keep in mind is that of Tom Griffin, an 18-year-old Viotorian. Little was said about Griffin at the time of the Sportsman-of-the-Year awards dinner in early March except to note his many accomplishments; because in the final outcome all the accolades went to the winner of the male athlete-of-the-year award, Bob Burrows of basketball and fastball fame. Which

But everyone on the committee was impressed with Griffin and his credentials were top-drawer as well. Better still, Griffin has taken up right where he left off last season and on Saturday at Swangard Stadium he showed his potential hasn't diminished one iota by winning the Roger Bannister mile over a former Oak Bay runner and national team member

The time of 4:10.0 over what some competitiors called "a heavy, slow and very painful track", is considered very good, and with John Martens of South Burnaby, another high school lad, running third, B.C. may have two prospective national team members in one division.

Then there was the Kentucky Derby, the biggest for the three-year-old horsey set. And if Foolish Pleasure was a handy winner, everyone must feel sorry for track announcer Chick Anderson who called the wrong horse, Prince Thou Art, in the stretch run, and only barely got up in time to recognize Foolish Pleasure before he crossed the finish line.

Foolish Pleasure before he crossed the finish line.

But it has happened before, and thereby hangs a tale.
For it was in 1947 that Clem McCarthy, one of the famous radio announcers of his day, called the wrong horse. He named Faultless the winner in the Preakness when it was Jet Pilot, who never received a call, who had won. Faultless finished third. "Oh, my God," McCarthy apologized to the crowd, "I have called the wrong winner". Faultless was third. Still, Foolish Pleasure, who has been described as "no Secretariat", certainly did all he was asked to do in the Derby, and was clearly the best horse.

Can't help recalling Vancouver coach Phil Maloney's words about the Montreal Canadiens either after watching last week's and weekend action in the NHL playoffs. "They just keep coming and coming," he said. And wasn't that the case in the two games against Buffalo Sabres at Montreal after the Sabres had surprised everyone by taking the first two games in Buffalo? And it was the Buffalo defence that disintegrated in face of the persistent Montreal attack as the 7-0 and 8-2 scores will bear witness.

Sure, Buffalo will be tougher at home because the Sabres are playing in a smaller rink, but it will be their hard-skating forwards who will have to carry the play to the Canadiens because the defence has to be suspect after what happened in Montreal. Besides, Ken Dryden is a better goalkeeper than either Rogier Crozier or Gerry Desjardins. Any arguments?

Meanwhile, even the most vociferous Philadelphia fan should admit that it's more pleasurable watching the Canadiens in action than the Flyers, because the Canadiens in high gear make one of the prettiest sights in sport and perhaps the way everyone would like to see hockey played, Still, the Flyers play to win, and they play well even if there is always that hint of intimidating tactics that obviously keeps the opposition loose, and perhaps not always minding the puck in favor of their well-being. And if the flyers, which they should, and the Canadiens — tonight should tell the Jarfalo tale — go

Yes, as the caller enquired, Fulham, which competed in Victhe Association Cup final on Saturday, once played in Vic-toria, and lost! How about that? It's real old hat, that one, Victoria United (or was it the all-stars?) defeated Fulham from Craven Cottage, on that memorable occasion, 1-0. Ab Travis scored the goal and brother Joe was the hero in goal for the locals . . . And no. as another reader asked, Harry Ornest who lost his bid to buy the B.C. Lions, isn't the Ornest who was here with the old Victoria Cougars. That was Leo, who was program manager under Lester Patrick and Fred

Hutchinson. He is Harry's brother.

And incidentally Leo has moved along some since then.
He was with the B.C. Lions and the Canadian Football League for 12 seasons where he pioneered the unified program advertising system. He also served in the NHL's services department, where he instituted a similar type program and more recently he was marketing director for the Omni, which Atlanta Flames call home, and in that capacity di rected radio, television and advertising. Now he is a third vice-president of the World Hockey Association as director of communications. But Poile is a VP as well. He is in charge of hockey operations and Larry Gordon is another, in char-

Scotty's Expecting Swarm of Sabres

BUFFALO (CP) — Fans in this western New York city are wondering if Buffalo Sabres can come back against Montreal Canadiens.

The Sabres, who won the first two games of their Stan-ley Cup semi-final against Montreal, dropped the next two in Montreal and were outscored 15-2 in the process. "You have got to figure both teams will be going," Montreal coach Scotty Bowman said of tonight's fifth game. "You can't say they won't be going because they haven't been. You can't say the Canadiens won't be going because they're on the road.

Nothing Like a Layoff To Fix Up a Guy's Game

If there was any surprise in Sunday's Vancouver Island Open-playoff, it was the ease with which Grant Milliken defeated Mike Gray. Milliken's contribution to the 8-and-6 result was in playing well. Especially putting. On Sunday, the Gorge Vale amateur wasn't missing those knee-knockers from four to seven feet.

Whenever Gray had putts of similar length, the touch wasn't there.

That made the 36-hole championship appear one-sided but, in actual fact, it was closer.

Milliken's success, and coming on the heels of clubmate Cec Ferguson's triumph last year, narrows the gap between amateurs and professionals. Amateurs have won the Island Open 12 times, including the first eight. The pros have 14 victories, including 10 straight until Ferguson broke the string last year.

While the biggest bouquet went to Milliken, George Murphy tossed a smaller one to a six-month layoff.

A one-time four-handicapper who qualified for the championship in past years, the 43-year-old Murphy gave up golf last year. He plays to a nine now.

"I just seemed to be hacking around and lost interest," he said. "I didn't touch a club for six months.

Bennett Offers Audit

Opposition leader Bill Bennett has challenged Premier Barrett to prove his accusations about Social Credit party funding by hiring a chartered accountant to examine Socied books amine Socred books. Bennett said his lawyer is drafting an agreement which would allow a chartered ac-countant to go through all Social Credit accounts and would call for Bennett's resignation and permanent departure from B.C. politics if Berrett's accusations are correct.

The premier has said the Socreds are spending $125,000 a month on advertising and there is any outside "educa-tion fund" contributing to the Socred party and called on Barrett to resign if an inves-tigation of the books proves him wrong.

But Barrett said he has no

NDP CLARIFIES OIL

Mines Minister Leo Nimsick denied Mon-day he is unhappy about the prospect of a new oil refinery in B.C.

The hassle-in-the-making is all to do with the spending of $2 million in Neighborhood Improvement Program funds.

Top priority for the associations is a community centre in each area, and city council made provision for these in the spending proposals approved last November.

But aldermen seem worried sick about the operating costs involved, and residents increasingly annoyed because the way they see it their projects are threatened. Is that a low growling we hear in the distance?

An item on the proposed Victoria police budget might give one pause to believe a disconsolate Kojak lurks in the depths of police headquarters.

The item aroused the interest of the police board at its

"Just what," one member asked Chief Jack Gregory, "is meant by your requesting two Smith and Wesson Iollipops."
Gregory, taken by surprise, said he didn't know.

"I just was wondering what you had against tootsie rolls," the member quipped. Later the Times asked Victoria police storeman Sgt. Doug Wilson about "lollipops." His answer: they are the manufacturer's name for flashing red warning lights of a type that can be attached to the top of police cars.

Victoria police soon will start an advertising campaign for new recruits even though there is "an overwhelming number" of applications on file. (The descriptive phrase comes from Mayor Peter Pollen, chairman of the police

'Crush' for Tickets To Olympic Games

Thousands of Canadians gathered in front of ticket sales offices across the country Monday to get their tickets for the 1976 Olympic Games and even Victoria seems hit by the Olympic mania.

The tickets went on sale exclusively at opening time Monday at all T. Eaton-Co. Ltd. stores across the country and K. A. Jones, Eaton's vice-president of special marketing services, said the demand was unbelieveable.

Charles MacQueen, box office manager in the Eaton's Victoria store, said there was "quite a crush" of ticket buyers when the store first opened its doors Monday morning. There were about 35 people in the initial lineup.

MacQueen said some people in line had to wait awhile for their turn, especially if they got placed behind someone wanting the full allotment of tickets.

Buyers are restricted to two tickets for a single event, and a maximum of 20 tickets

The telephone information service on health and social questions being introduced by the Health Education Centre in Victoria will go into operation this evening

The service, first of its kind in Canada, makes it possible for anyone to call the centre's, library at 592-1251 and have minutes long, played for tion on preventive health, nutrition, physical fitness, safety, sports parent - child re-lationships, senior citizens' philis and gonorrhea, cancer and glaucoma.

Documented information in the tape library is from current health education publications, says the centre's executions, trive director, Ronald Whit-ney. It isn't intended to make diagnoses but to prevent crisis and make information available on problem areas that may need medical or other professional help.

The Health Education Centre at 3019 Shakespeare opened five years ago. It is a non-profit society organized by some local doctors in co-operation with Seventh Day Adventist organizations deal-ing with health and preventive medicine.

The service will go into operation this evening, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., Whitney said. It will be available Monday to Friday from 9 a.m. to noon and Monday to Thursday in the evenings from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The centre's playback equipment enables it to handle five calls simultaneously Following is a list of the 109 tapes in the centre's library, by number and title. Whitney said callers simply dial 592-1251, ask the operator to play the tape they want, identifying it by number. If a caller wants more information or to hear the tape again, he or she simply calls back and asks the operator.

On the lower east side in New York, 40 years ago in a gone-to-seed boarding house for the aged, when one of the residents was carried out for the last time, it was customary for those left behind to gather in a nearby saloon to drink a cheerful toast, not to their departed companion, but rather to themselves and their own survival.

This anecdote may be apochryphal, but it says something true about the inner feeling of men and women as we grow older and the prospect of death becomes more nearly imminent rather than just distantly inevitable

But the gratification of numbering oneself among the survivors is being seriously eroded these days by the dreary threat of spinning out one's last days in a nursing

As one wry old party of my acquaintance put it: "It used to be unchurched romance that people called 'a fate worse than death'; now it is being sent to a nursing home."

In spite of my friend's gloomy joke, there is no question that there are a goodly number of nursing homes staffed by men and women who are conscientious and competent and do their jobs

But the idea of segregating our old people even in ele-gantly appointed and superbly administered institutions, if such were universally available, in still unnatural, souldestroying and inhuman, especially for those who are passes for life in many con-temporary nursing homes may not be actually lethal, but to call it "deadly" does not seem an exaggeration to many inmates.

At its worst, according to the current congressional investigation of what has been chillingly labeled the "nurs-ing-home industry", allega-tions of abuse and neglect suggest a miserable situation that has become a criminal disaster. The dreary parade and tricky real estate deals are all too familiar whenever floods of money are legislated well-intentioned

At least one politician, Edward Koch, member of Congress from New York, acknowledges that there may be no hope of bringing back the three-generation household, but says he is going to do something about the nursingsomething about the nursing

His idea is stunningly simple. Instead of paying $10,000 or more to a nursing home to take care of one client for one year, he suggests that for those who are not acutely sick, or otherwise in need of constant nursing care, the el-derly and most of the chronically ill be cared for with that same money in their own

Home-maker visits, social services, rent supplements, food, visiting nurses, periodic medical care could all be provided and paid for without herding old people into institutions they do not really need.

It sounds almost too good to be true, but it is difficult to summon up arguments against his solution as a humane and practical alterna-tive to the costly blunders and slopes. This increases the ground-level temperature and stretches the growing season. One more point: If possible, get sloping land that has a southern exposure. If you seitle for a north-facing hillside, the result is less light for crops in the spring and fall, and a winter with lots-of cold winds and little sun to keep up your morale. up your morale.

OFF BY YOURSELF Since marginal acreage has been much less p o p u l a r for development than flat tracts you're likely to be somewhat isolated maybe miles from the nearest neighbor. Such a life, of course, can be very peaceful. Still, this condition does have its negative aspects ... which become obvious fairly soon.

One problem is that roads primitive and poorly maintained. This probably means you'll be stuck a lot in mud you'll be stuck a lot in mud and snow.

Also — although getting away from it all sounds good now — you might find later that electricity for blenders power tools, etc., would be a real blessing, and that a phone sure would eliminate a lot of hassles. Unfortunately, the farther back you are, the less chance there is that these hookups will be available on hookups will be available on your land.

MAKIN BUCKS What about making money on marginal land? As I've al-ready mentioned, farming is out of the question in most in-stances. It's hard enough for a small operator to make a profit on good flat acreage ... and almost impossible if you're working a slope. One alternative is to take advantage of your woods. De-pending on what kind of trees you have, you could log, cut tirewood, grow nursery stock or harvest Christmas trees.

Beekeeping is a reasonable way to bring in money with relatively little expense and work. A number of hives and a honey house take up only a small propert of head of the small property of the property of th small amount of land, and iso-lation is an advantage be-cause there's less chance of competition from other

Since you're also less likely to have a worry about contamination from pesticides, you'll be able to produce an organic honey which is in great demand both economically and pathicipally. cally and nutritionally.

AND FINALLY Even if you do have the money and the inclination for good farm acreage, you'll be wise to consider a tract which

You could then situate some of your buildings on slopes, where they'd be protected from flooding, and wouldn't use space in the more valu-wity-fed water.

Make the best use of the hilly and flat areas on your place, and you'll have a sensibly arranged homestead that eliminates the drawbacks of Lady, I am a Christian, and as far as I am concerned, Christianity is the only religion in the world.

If you were invited to give the invocation at a public meeting, would you sit down for a couple of hours and make a study of all the religions that could possibly be represented in your community and then make up a ty, and then make up a prayer that could in no way offend anybody?

There is no possible way!

DEAR ABBY: I don't know where to go with the problem so I'm turning to you. My son, an only child, is four years old. He's a normal healthy boy, but I'm afraid he won't be for long if something isn't done about his eating habits—and soon.

For the last two months he has been living on peanut but-ter and jelly sandwiches and chocolate chip ice cream. That is all. He refuses to touch milk, orange juice, ce-real or vegetables.

I called my pediatrician and he said, "Don't force him to eat anything he doesn't like, and don't worry, he won't starve. And I have to go now because I have a boy in my office who has a nickel up his nose." Then he hung up. nose." Then he hung up.

My handicap is part of me although admittedly, probable. My handicap is part of me, although admittedly, probably the least important part of DEAR MOM: Leave the boy alone and don't hassle him. Many children go through such phases. In due time he'll get over it and eat other foods. Try your pediatrician again. By this time, he's finished with the boy with the nickel up his nose. all. But if someone is sufficiently interested to ask, why shouldn'f I answer politely and calmly? To pretend that the handicap doesn't exist, and to expect others to, is unrealistic.

Expectant Mothers 'Edgy'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI). The six-day anesthetists' strike to protest soaring malpractice insurance premiums has resulted in a drop in the birth rate. One doctor says the medical crisis has made expectant mothers edgy.

Dr. John Kerner, the chief obstetrician at Mt. Zion Hospital, said the birth rate was off slightly because, "when women are frightened, they don't go into labor."

The work stoppage, which began last Thursday when the anesthetists let their insurance lapse, occurred at about 30 hospitals in San Francisco. However, there were six not

Chinese Cabbage: It's Popular

The so-called Chinese Cab-bage, although often listed as a Brassica, belongs to the clo-sely related Mustards. It has been an important vegetable in China for 40 centuries.

For some unknown reason there are no records as to chemical or vitamin content despite the popularity it has reached on the N. American continent in the past 25 years.

It is known that the Chiarable land on which to pro-EAGLE DELIVERY Messenger-Moving-Storage 383-0621 Exp. Counts 478-7082 duce food for a large population, have always concentrated their efforts on foods of high nutritional value. Therefore we assume a vegetable acceptable to them for 4,000 years will be something worth growing.

While varieties and cultural directions have changed somewhat from those given in books and seed catalogues of the 1940s, the basic culture remains the same and must be followed to ensure a satisfactory crop.
Chinese Cabbage is essenSince local soils are not suitable for producing mature plants in early spring we consider it as a fall crop to mature in late September.

The plants are tender to frost and must be harvested (cut off like head cabbage) before the first killing frost in any area. Soil needs plenty of compost to hold sufficient moisture to prevent any check in growth.

Storage time is less than for storage time is jess than tor cabbage, about two weeks under home conditions from time of cutting. With commer-cial temperature and humidity controls, heads have been kept for nearly two months

Seed is sown sparingly since the plants have to be spaced 12 to 15 ins. apart in the row. If thinning is necessary it should be done when the seedlings are two to three inches tall, the thinnings used as cooked greens, raw in salads or mixed in soups.

Like all Mustards, Chinese

ers and seeds in hot weather; when growth is checked by root damage or lack of moisture; when left in the soil after maturity has been reached. If seed is sown in a seedbed the seedlings must be moved before the fourth week otherwise flowers will be produced instead of leaves Originally, three varieties were available; Wong Bok (80 days) a short plant 10 to 14 ins. high, six ins. in diameter; Pe-Tsai (75 days) 12 to 18 ins. high and five in diameter; Chihli (sometimes listed as Chi-hi-li) 75 days, 15 to 20 ins. high, four in diameter.

Some of these are still available but selections and hybrids dominate the listings today. Michihli (78 days), an improved strain of Chihli, is about 18 by 4 ins., leaves dark green and heads that are well blanched. Flavor good, leaves tight, crisp, tender, but will not store more than two hybrids could be misleading to local gardeners. Although larger slow-bolting hybrid sown in July for late Sep-tember use. Wintertime (80 days) 10 ins. high and weigh-ing seven pounds, is also sown in July for maturing in early October.

called Springtime, Summer-time and Wintertime, sowing time is June or July for harvesting in late August, September, or early October: Sprintime, a short thick head, the best of the Wong

Bok hybrids, is sown in cool areas in June for August harvesting. Summertime (90 days) is a Locally it is best to sow in early July for harvesting in late September. Some experimenting is needed to determine the variety most suited to a given soil and location, but a lot will depend on the date of the first fall frost, not for Victoria in general, but for the same area in which the garden is located.

After West had led the jack of hearts and the dummy came into view, declarer paused to study the situation. He quickly perceived that He quickly perceived that after winning the opening lead, if he attacked the diamond suit, he would be doom-ing himself to defeat. That is, if at tricks two, three, and four he played the ace, king, and a third diamond, the de-fenders, upon winning the third diamond lead, would return a heart, driving out de-clarer's remaining stopper.
All declarer would now have would be eight tricks: one spade, two hearts, and five diamonds. When declarer would subsequently lead clubs, the defenders would take their club ace, and cash their established heart suit. Had the declarer played the hand as stated, he would have lost three hearts, a diamond, and a club.

And so it came to pass that declarer won the opening lead with dummy's ace of hearts, after which he led the five of clubs. When East played low, South's jack won the trick.

South's jack won the trick.

Declarer did not now make the mistake of continuing clubs in the hope that the six outstanding clubs were divided 3-3 (which would have given declarer five club tricks). Instead, he properly attacked diamonds, on the mathematically sound assumption that the five missing diamonds were divided 3-2. At trick three, he led his six of diamonds, and when West put up the ten, it was permitted to up the ten, it was permitted to win the trick.

A heart was returned, de clarer taking the trick with his king. He then led his re-maining diamond to dummy's ace, and made five diamond tricks, one spade, two hearts and one slub and one club.

It should be noted that if East had taken his ace of clubs (at trick two), South would have had an easy time, for in this case he would have made five club tricks, two diamonds, two hearts, and one spade.

Of course, if West happened to possess the club ace, it might have been another story. But the point is that by attacking diamonds first, declares evold not fulfill his conclarer could not fulfill his con-tract. So it became a matter of hope versus no hope.

Hatler said he was instructed by government officials to snare black bears with leg-hold traps and shoot adult males and release the females—"if that's possible."

Gardom, who has asked the legislature repeatedly to ban the use of leg-hold traps in the province, said it is ironic that the government is attempting to find a more humane trap but is willing to use leg-hold traps for its own purposes.

"The whole thing is ridiculous and unjustified," Hatler said. "The problem is a vocal minority of people who still have the Little Red Riding Hood complex that anything with long teeth is bad."

He said that the situation dates back to the late 1950s and early 1960s when there was large scale poisoning of animals like wolves, bears and coyotes in an attempt to reduce predators that kill cattle and sheep.

"In those years a large proportion of branch fundsmore than 50 per cent in some regions—was used to kill animals," he said.

"But more recently the branch realized its errors and obtained a great deal more information about the natural relationship between predators and other forms of wildlife."

3 Bombs In Irish Hotels

LIMERICK (Reuter) — The centre of this city in the south-western Irish Republic was sealed off and its residents evacuated when bombs discovered in three hotels early today.

An immediate watch was put on the city's prison, where Dr. Bridget Rose Dugdale, a millionaire's daughter, is serving a nine-year sentence for her part in Irish Republi-can guerrilla activities.

The bombs were discovered when a guest at a Limerick hotel refused to allow his bags to be carried by a porter.

Police were told, and the man disappeared, leaving a half-pound of gelignite attached to a 10-gallon gasoline

Two bombs were found later in other hotels in the city, after a warning had been telephoned to a local newspaper office. Bomb experts exploded one bomb and de-

Feed Wheat

Monday's volume of trade was 71,000 bushels of feed wheat, 466,000 of oats, 1,758,000 of barley, 555,000 of Treesday and most closed on rye, 283,000 of flax, 1,310,000 of rapeseed and nil of corn.

Closing prices:

There were several factors that influenced the movements of prices, but none was strong enough for a sustained drive. In the closing minutes profit-taking on brief long positions and the selling of old crop saybeans against purchases of new crop produced a loss of nearly 10 cents in the expir-ing May option. Soybean meal losf nearly $2 a ton while soy-bean oil prices were mixed.

Wheat, corn and oats prices-also were mixed.

Late strength in corn and oats was attributed to weather buying. Sudden weakness near the final bell in the wheat pit was mainly profit-taking.

LONDON (AP) - A United States consortium said today it has struck oil in the north. Sea about 150 miles east of Scotland's Orkney Islands. Oil industry sources said the strike was significant.

The Pan Ocean group said it struck with a single well at 12,000 feet that brought some of the highest flow rates yet found in the North Sea 22,000 barrels a day.

But it said further drilling is needed to determine the extent of the find.

Opening lead: Jack of .

After West had led the jack of hearts and the dummy came into view, declarer paused to study the situation. He quickly perceived that after winning the opening lead, if he attacked the diamond suit, he would be dooming himself to defeat. That is, if at tricks two, three, and four he played the ace, king, and a third diamond, the defenders, upon winning the third diamond lead, would return a heart, driving out declarer's remaining stopper.

All declarer would now have would be eight tricks: one spade, two hearts, and five diamonds. When declarer After West had led the jack

South's jack won the trick.

Declarer did not now make the mistake of continuing clubs in the hope that the six outstanding clubs were divided 3-5 (which would have given declarer five club tricks). Instead, he properly attacked diamonds, on the mathematically sound assumption that the five missing diamonds were divided 3-2. At trick three, he led his six of diamonds, and when West put up the ten, it was permitted to win the trick.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Wednesday May 7 By SIDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19):
Be more self-reliant than in recent past. A partner, close associate may rebel at previous plans. You could have to temporarily go it a lone. You're capable and you will win. Know it; act accordingly. Promotion is in offing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20):
You may be in on operation which previously was clandestine. Know it and be discreet. Insist on proper credits. One who claims to be doing you a big favor should be made to démonstrate. Maintain balance. Finish key project.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Friends may try to get you in middle of dispute. Maintain neutrality. Those who fight today could become allies tomorrow, leaving you in awk-ward position. Know it — con-duct yourself accordingly. New contact could lead to meaningful relationship. Be
